Lonely Elm Tree Stands Guard Over Farm in Stately Splendor

GROWS TO GREAT AGE

ROBLIN, Nov. 4 — (Special) — Standing all alone and lonely in a field at the crossroads where Shingle Street and Highway 41 intersect two miles south of Roblin is a tall, umbrella-shaped elm. Something of a land-mark in the district, the tree contrasts strongly with the flat farmlands surrounding it, and is known to be at least 125 years old.

The farm which accommodates the solitary giant has been in the Walroth family for 98 years. The tree was a mere stripling when Henry Walroth and his family settled in 1848 near Centreville in Camden Township, fresh from the United States, and his little son, Charles, who later inherited the farm, was then six years old.

DURING THE FIRST WEEK of settling on the new land, little Charles remembered well his older brother Solomon climbing the elm, which even then was in open country and wholly alone, to trim it and make it look presentable.

Before coming north to Camden Township, Henry Walroth was by trade a maker of tanning mill equipment. When he came to Canada, he noticed a good market for plain, cheap, sturdy furniture among the hardy settlers of the district in their pioneer homesteads. He turned his skill in wood-working to the manufacture of splint-bottomed chairs, cupboards and chests.

HENRY'S WARES were sold by journeymen who plied their trade along the old "Gravel Road," which is now Highway 41. They were delivered as far north as Cloyne and south to the Deseronto district. Many homes still have surviving examples of this early furniture which have been in use for over 100 years. One home at least still prizes a wooden Walroth clock, made entirely of wood with the exception of weights and bell, and it is said to still keep time.

Modern civilization has changed the face of Henry Walroth's old stamping ground, but his tree and his woodwork still recall Camden Township's heritage in early Ontario history.

The farm, which is now listed in the Holstein-Friesian Association records as the Walbrook Stock Farm, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks. Mrs. Brooks is the only daughter of the late Charles and Mary Walroth.

The "Old Elm," which has presented a bold face to the weather for so many years, has been revered by each succeeding generation of Walroth's. Standing as it does in the centre of the field, it makes cultivation difficult. But Walroth farmers have heeded well the traditional poem which goes:

"Ah, woodman, spare that tree;
Touch not a single bow.

Dwelling In Nocturnal

WELLAND, Nov. 4 —

Charged with housebreaking, seven men from Fenwick, seven miles northwest of here, were held Saturday until Friday morning on complaints of Mr. and Mrs. of Fenwick that the men had broken into the Moote home late Tuesday night, smashed property inside outside the house, smeared with paint and wound up destructive visit by throwing personal belongings of the couple on the road. The men arrested were Don Stirtzinger, Orland Fisher, Leland Reece, Julius Heoyi, Colburn, William Iftody, Frank Biro, Harry Puttick and George Shave. They range in age from 16 to 30 years.

In youth it sheltered me,
And I'll protect it now."

Born of hardy stock, it has withstood the battering of ice storms, winds and electric storms for well over a century and is still as sound as ever. There may be older trees, but this one is a member in good standing of the Walroth family.

MRS. ROSS PATTERSON

At the Kingston General Hospital, on June 5, one of Sydenhams most highly respected citizens, Mrs. Ross Patterson, was called to higher service.

Mrs. Patterson, the former Hannah Walroth, was the daughter of the late Jacob Walroth and his wife, the former Isabella McKnight. She was born at Verona, in 1891, and lived her early life, there.

In May, 1913, she was married to Ross Patterson, of Harlington, and spent most of her married life in that vicinity. In 1946, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson took up residence near Napanee, later moving to a farm north of Sydenham.

Mrs. Patterson was devoted to her church and had served as president of various organizations in the church and took part in many of the activities of the communities in which she lived. She taught in Sunday school for many years and was always willing to help, wherever needed. Of a kindly disposition and hospitable nature, Mrs. Patterson had many friends, who will miss her in the community's activities.

Left to mourn her loss besides her husband are three children, Mosten, of Napanee, Maurice, of Barrie, and Velma, of Sydenham; and nine grandchildren. One grandchild, William Charles Patterson, predeceased her in 1949. Also left to mourn are three sisters and one brother: Mrs. Minerva Smith, of Kingston; Mrs. Elizabeth Davey, of Kingston, and Mrs. J. A. Snider (Olive), of Harrowsmith, and John Walroth, of Newburgh.

Funeral services were held in Sydenham United Church, Tuesday, June 8, with Rev. E. D. Snelgrove in charge, assisted by Rev. C. D. McLellan, Napanee. Burial took place in Harrowsmith Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were: Ray Babcock, Archie Goslin, Fred Martin, Orville Silver, Harold Snook, and Harold Presler. The flower-bearers were Lorne Moore, Charles Clark, William Trousdale, Austin Trousdale, Austin Snider, Richard Coulter, and Chester Coulter.
